Our Father's house

...there is a busy humming in the halls. People are chatting and talking; some are praying. They murmur their petitions and thanks. But in one corner the talking becomes louder, more exciting. A group of teachers is discussing the laws of Moses and the workings of God. For three days they have been debating now, seeking truth and understanding. And in between you discover a young boy. There is a teenager in the midst of all the academics; listening, reading and discussing with the educated to the astonishment of all. The atmosphere is thick with excitement, curiosity and amazement...surely this boy is gifted!

Then suddenly, two parents disrupt the intensity of that moment. People turn their heads at the mother's outcry, some teachers startle as the father approaches. Their son turns around: "Why were you searching for me? Didn't you know I had to be in my Father's house?"

Some weeks ago, I preached about the church being a place like no other, inspired by Jesus' question. I asked myself, what it means to be the Father's House? (c.f. Luke 2:50) As the temple in ancient Israel represented the place of worship and divine presence, so do Christians believe that the community of believers – the church – is the Father's house. The church is a place where God is living and active. The church is a place where God's presence becomes visible. But often our own experience can seem quite far off, for several good reasons. So, how do we become this place? ...how do we become our Father's house?

I would like to suggest that a key element doesn't lie in the movement of one, but in the joint dance of all three generations. I am convinced that there is immeasurable potential when the three generations of the church-family offer their potential to one another. When the three generations engage in a beautiful dance together, perhaps a ceilidh, to the heavenly tune of the Gospel. Jesus was not talking to peers of his own age; he engaged in conversation with adults, mainly the third generation and this experience becomes a crucial turning point, in which Jesus gained a sense of his vocation. It is in this moment that he understood himself in a bigger picture: This is my Father's house.

There is immeasurable potential when the three generations of the church-family offer their potential to one another. In the words of the prophet Joel:

*I will pour out my Spirit on all people.
Your sons and daughters will prophesy,
Your old men and women will dream dreams,
Your young men and women will see visions. (c.f. Joel 2:28)*

One place I see this becoming a reality is in the faithful ministry of the leaders in Sunday School and Kingdom Kids. During our last leader's meeting in late September, we gathered together and were filled with thankfulness and joy as we reflected upon the development that had taken place. The focus of the feedback was not so much the programme or the themes. Joy and thankfulness sourced itself from experiences of growing relationships. We see connections and a growing sense of the overall work that is happening. We see growing friendships between the kids and between us leaders.

For me, this is the joy of being aware that 'We are our Father's house', where we dance our ceilidh to the heavenly tune of the Gospel with dreams and visions for this next generation.

And we invite you all, to join in; to pray for the leaders, for the next generation of our church and to dance with us, dreaming that our children and youth will turn around in astonishment, asking: Didn't you know I am my Father's house?

Vacancy News: Nominating Committee Update

Following the election of the nominating committee, we held our first meeting on 30 September. This group takes the vacancy process forward by considering applicants, undertaking visits and interviews, and then proposing a ‘sole nominee’ as Barclay Viewforth’s new minister. We are encouraged by the enquiries we have received to date. We have set a closing date of 1 November for applications and hope to arrange initial interviews later in November.

Those elected onto the Nominating Committee are (in alphabetical order): • Lindsey Anderson • Elaine Coull • David Craigie • Katharine Ellis (subsequently appointed by the Group as Clerk) • Mike Ellis • Katy Gray • Jean MacAulay • Kirsteen Milne • Andrew Paterson (subsequently appointed by the Group as Convener) • John Ritchie • Stephen Tweedie

We greatly value and appreciate your continued prayerful support for all aspects of our work.

Andrew Paterson, Convener

Farewell...

My time here is over and I thank you all for a great experience. Thank you for welcoming me so open-heartedly, for your hospitality and your fellowship.

It was very enriching to get to know you and your church and to experience what it means to organise a church. It was a joy to prepare and conduct Kingdom Kids, besides participating in mentoring units, gaining an insight into pioneer work and having fellowship with you. In my time here, I was able to see spiritual excitement in your community. I hope and pray that you dare to embrace this excitement and to walk new steps

Heather's DTS Update

I have already been learning and growing so much, and I'm only five weeks into the Discipleship Training School! I would like to say an enormous thank you to everyone who has supported me to be here, whether financially, in your encouraging words or in your prayers. God is doing so much and I have no words to express how grateful I am for the opportunity to be here in New Zealand with Youth With A Mission.

In the last four weeks, we have been blessed with five incredible speakers, who have talked on a range of subjects. For the week in which I'm writing this, the focus is the Lordship of Christ, which looks into the fact that Jesus is not only our personal Saviour, but the Lord and King of our lives. After only two lectures, I can already tell that this week in particular is going to be very intense and bring a lot of growth!

We recently found out where we'll be going for outreach, which is super exciting! Leaving at the beginning of December, I'm going to be in a team with four other students and two staff members, travelling to various locations in south-east Asia. Our first destination is Laos, but because it's a closed country, I'm not sure how much more than that I'm able to say about it right now. After this, we'll spend five weeks in India over two areas. The first of these is Bellary, where we will be working with a pastor, although what that will entail, I don't know yet! The second place in India in which we'll be spending time is called Hampi, where there is an incredible boulder field that is a popular destination for climbers. Here, we'll be building relationships with other climbers staying in the area and sharing the Gospel with them. Finally, we will travel to Thailand and spend three weeks in Ubon, working with a missionary. Again, I don't know exactly what this will involve, but I do know that we'll be working with a Juvenile Detention Centre for some of the time. I will include more information in subsequent updates about outreach, as I find it out!

Prayer Points:

- That God would continue to reveal to me more of His character and love
- For energy and concentration – our weekdays are very full-on!
- That positive relationships would continue to develop within the group.

For information about how to support Heather financially for her outreach, or for more details please speak to Stephen or Fiona Tweedie. Full copies of Heather's update letter are available in the Pillar Hall.

What have we learned from reading the Acts of the Apostles?

We have been following the Acts of the Apostles most Sunday mornings since June this year and we have learned time and again that the Holy Spirit changes ordinary people and enables them to do extraordinary things in the name of Jesus Christ.

We have learned that in the first 20 years after the Holy Spirit came upon the small band of followers of Jesus at Pentecost that such a Spirit would change the world for ever.

Much of the first 11 Chapters of Acts is taken up by people like Stephen the first Christian Martyr, Philip the evangelist, and in particular Peter upon whom Jesus built his emerging church in Jerusalem. Later James, the brother of Jesus, became the leader of the Jerusalem Christian community.

Preaching and teaching to the gentiles (i.e. the non-Jews) became accepted by the Apostles, but not without much division and arguments – which came to a head at the Council of Jerusalem in about year 49/50 AD.

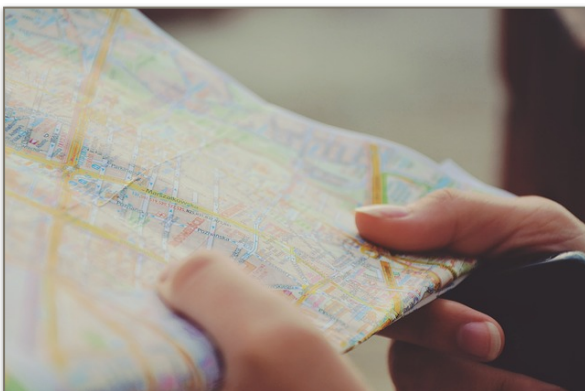

From Chapter 11 onwards Saul, who subsequently used his Roman name Paul, became the leading evangelist to the Gentiles during his First Missionary Journey (46-48AD).

He was ably supported by Barnabas, John Mark, Timothy, Silas and several others during his missionary journeys, although they did not always get on well. Over time, they forgave one another because the Spirit was within them.

The events that happened to Paul and Barnabas in Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe are typical of the events that Paul encountered in many towns. A large number of people turned to Christ following Paul and Barnabas' preaching and miracles and became Christians. However another group, usually led by orthodox Jews, rejected the Good News of Jesus, stirred up trouble for Paul and Barnabas and ran them out-of-town.

Paul and his companions frequently experienced beatings, stoning and imprisonment as they took the Gospel to the Gentiles throughout the eastern Mediterranean on their missionary journeys. The spread of the Gospel became unstoppable.

The Gospel is still being preached around the world today and in our city because it brings forgiveness, a fresh start in life, love, joy, an inner peace, new attitudes, and an expectation that there is a life to come.

We have been reminded that all are invited into the family of God through his Son Jesus Christ and Spirit. However we are also reminded that we have to tell people about Jesus, just as Paul and his companions did so faithfully. How else do people find out?

Afternoon Fellowship

Back in the Pillar Hall, after the trip to the Falkirk Wheel, we enjoyed a talk from our Locum, Martin Pearce. Starting with a picture of Snoopy, he talked about things that were very familiar to our age group: cardboard tops on the school milk bottles, radio but no T.V. or mobile phones (most houses didn't have phones at all in our village). What we did have was much more freedom; to play outside, walk to school ourselves and get up to mischief of varying kinds. Life now is very different for all of us, but – as Martin pointed out – not everything has changed. The message that Jesus brought to us is the same; the love of God is the same; the promise He made to the peoples of the world is the same. The world around may change, but the love of God endures for ever. As well as being given a lot of food for thought, we also got a chance to get to know Martin better.

Our next meeting on the 5 November at 2pm is our Games Afternoon. This is great fun, so if you are free do come along.

Kitchen notes: Christmas cake

While I object to seeing Christmas chocolates in the supermarkets in September, it does at least remind me it is time to start stockpiling dried fruit ready to make Christmas cakes during the October school holiday. This rich fruitcake developed by the Victorians isn't everyone's favourite, but I have to confess to being a big fan of it in its un-iced form with a piece of Wensleydale cheese. The recipe below is nut-free – and if you wish to have a sober cake, soak the fruit in cranberry or apple juice instead. For the fruit, I use a mixture of all the different dried fruits I have in the cupboard (apricots, cherries, sultanas, raisins, dates, currants, prunes, cherries, cranberries, mixed peel, more cherries...). I find the most time-consuming part is lining the tin: you MUST use a double layer of greaseproof on the bottom and sides; the sides should also extend beyond the height of your cake pan.

Ingredients

For the pre-soaking:

- 950g dried fruit
- 100ml brandy

For the cake:

- 225g plain flour
- ½ level teaspoon nutmeg, freshly grated
- 1 level teaspoon ground mixed spice
- 225g dark brown soft sugar
- 4 large eggs
- 1 dessertspoon black treacle
- 225g spreadable butter

1. Soak the fruit for 24 hours; line and grease an eight-inch round tin; preheat oven to 140C/GM1
2. Beat the sugar and butter together, add the eggs, treacle, flour and spices; mix well.
3. Add the soaked fruit, stir well and put into the cake tin. Bake on the bottom shelf of the oven for four hours.
4. I then use brandy to 'feed' the cake at regular intervals between now and Christmas.

Linda Garside

Editor's note: I can vouch for both the deliciousness and longevity of Linda's Christmas cake recipe as she kindly made my wedding cake – and the top tier was just as good over a year later at my daughter's dedication!

Climate change march

On Friday 20 September, many people all over the world gathered to march, concerned about climate change and what we should do.

Here in Edinburgh, thousands of young people, adults & children gathered to march from The Meadows, down the Royal Mile, past the Scottish Parliament to Holyrood Park.

The day had turned out beautiful and sunny with a clear blue sky. The mood was serious yet joyous. Together we felt we could help save the planet.

Women, men, children and teenagers held up home-made placards with all sorts of messages:

- Save the planet, plant trees
- You may die of old age, we will die of climate change
- There is no plan B. There is no Planet B

Whistles and chanting reverberated along the march. It was heartening to see so many young people there and taking a lead.

Prayers for all at Barclay Viewforth Church and for the World

Rejoice always, ¹⁷ pray continually, ¹⁸ give thanks in all circumstances; for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus. (1 Thessalonians 5:16-18)

Heavenly Father, we thank you for the appointment of the Nominating Committee and pray that they will discern the right person to take our church family forward. We thank you for our interim moderator as he guides them and the Kirk Session through these days of vacancy.

We thank you for our children's groups and for their parents and guardians. For Stefanie's leadership and all who support her in telling the children about who you are and in demonstrating your love.

We thank you for the missional communities and groups including the Afternoon Fellowship, Blessing, Football, Toddlers, Tollcross Community Pastors, Knit 2 Together, Connect Plus, Toddlers and The Net. We thank you for the leaders of these groups and for the opportunity to make new relationships through their activities.

We thank you for our organists, musicians, choir, flower ladies, audio-visual team, refreshment providers, volunteer cleaners, office team, ministries team, worship leaders, pastoral team, and all the other people whose work in administration, property and finance enables our church family to continue actively through this vacancy period. May we continue to work together in unity of purpose and in unity of love.

Almighty Father, as we look out into our city, our country and our world we pray for people everywhere.

We pray for people who feel unloved and for those who need new life and to begin life again. Help people to understand that your Holy Word is part of the solution for addressing all the problems and challenges that people face in everyday situations.

We pray that the Church of Scotland will continue to preach the Gospel faithfully to all who live in Scotland. We ask your blessings on the initiative called the radical plan – that it will help your church to grow and be relevant to all people everywhere.

We pray for our troubled world...so many countries divided politically or suffering from war, famine, terrorism and natural disasters. May all leaders seek peace, justice and the common good.

We pray these prayers and all the unspoken prayers of our hearts through your Son Jesus - our Lord and our Saviour. Amen.

Football Update

The strong start by the church's football team hasn't been sustained over the past month, although two of the three scheduled matches had to be postponed. In the game which did go ahead, Barclay Viewforth suffered a 5:0 league reverse against St Columba's Free Church.

The first of the postponed league matches was called off at the request of our opponents, Broxburn Baptists; the second, against Niddrie Community Church, was postponed due to heavy rain overnight – albeit there was pleasant autumn sunshine by the time the match would have kicked off. An all-weather playing surface couldn't be secured as an alternative and so the squad made its way to the Ballroom Snooker Club at Meadowbank for a pre-planned afternoon get-together and had to make do with Everton v West Ham United on television as their day's football ration.

Upcoming matches are against defending champions, Port Seton, in the league and Bristo Memorial Church in the ECFA Cup. Training continues at Portobello High School on Wednesday evenings on an all-weather floodlit surface.

If interested in viewing a Saturday morning match or attending training, please get in touch with me. Your prayers for the ongoing direction of the church's football set-up and the Edinburgh Churches Football League would be much appreciated.

Trees

Last month in my series on what I've learnt from looking at the trees in the neighbourhood I picked the horse chestnut. This month I will look at its cousin...

In the Astley Ainslie stands this ancient sweet chestnut. This is a spectacular tree with a mighty trunk, lofty branches and a wonderful green canopy. Like the horse chestnut, it produces spiky fruits (and this is the season), but they are very different. I have never tried collecting the sweet chestnuts – they always seem a bit small and maybe Scotland is a bit cold for them! However, they certainly provide a wealth of food for wildlife.

This particular tree has had surgery over its long lifetime. Many branches have fallen or been removed. New growth sprouts from its base. The tree, though old, is bursting with life and energy. It has witnessed much in its lifetime, and many things have come and gone around it. Changes have happened. And still it stands. It still has a job to do. It still has a life to live. It reaches towards the light – and produces its fruit in season.

I hope I can be like this lofty tree: keep asking God to bring new growth into my life, season by season—producing leaves, seeds, and then having times of rest in the winter seasons. I pray that I will be attractive to others who will come and shelter under my canopy or rest on my branches. To stand firm like this, my roots need to go deep and wide. I need to soak up enough water and nutrients to sustain me – to refresh and nourish me. I need to be sustained daily by the living word, by the water of life. The light and love of Christ need to be sought. I need to open my branches to things that God wants to pour out on me from above – the light of the Son, the wind of the Spirit, and the rain – nourishment from the Father. In turn I can provide for others, but only if I have first received the gifts to make me who I am meant to be. Let me be rooted and grounded in love.

Remembrance Sunday

Don't forget, the morning service will start at 10.50am on Sunday 10 November, to allow us to take part in the two-minutes silence at 11am.

Bags of Hope

The demand for Bags of Hope has begun. Julie, our frontline person at BVC, has already given out two of these bags.

With winter fast approaching, the need for these bags will no doubt escalate. We are therefore in the process of adding to our stocks to fill more bags.

Should anyone in the congregation wish to help by providing wipes, small tins of vaseline, hand cream or travel tissues, it would be much appreciated.

Our thanks go to all who have so generously given to us in the past.

Regular Giving

Are you interested in changing your method of regular giving?

- If you use weekly envelopes, would you now find it more convenient to change to monthly envelopes? or
- If you use weekly, monthly or quarterly envelopes, would it now suit you to change to giving by a standing order?

If you are thinking of making a change, then now is the time to arrange to do it by contacting Janet Darling before the end of November.

Please don't hesitate to speak to me in confidence if you would like to discuss any aspect of these different methods of giving before making a decision or to find out about Gift Aid.

I would be pleased to speak to anyone who is a regular worshipper at Barclay Viewforth and who would like information about Gift Aid and giving regularly by envelope or by standing order.

Janet Darling, Treasurer

Editor's note: Gift Aid forms and details about giving through standing order/bank transfers are also available in the Pillar Hall. If you are a regular giver and a UK tax payer (and have not already done so) please consider signing up for Gift Aid, as this allows the church to claim an additional 25% on top of anything you donate.
