FLAG UP
THE STRUGGLE

CLAUDIUS ENGLAND is a “proud JAMAICAN.” He is a singer, songwriter, and musician who uses the art form of music as a way to convey messages that represent his beliefs and culture. He has a heart for the younger generation and strives to see them enlarge their self-esteem by loving themselves, loving others and connecting spiritually.

Claudius’ music is truthful and reflects his personal experiences as well as the experiences of the people around him. His greatest desire is “to see his music influencing people to make positive life changing decisions, by pointing them to Jesus.”

His musical influences include his mother (a former church choir singer), his father (a talented dub poet), famous artists such as Bob Marley and Buju Banton (because of their messages of hope and love), and gospel music in general (due to the spiritual elements that it connotes and his upbringing).

Claudius is a simple guy who is fun-loving and enjoys making people laugh. He enjoys interacting with people through activities such as playing football, and creating music in the studio.

Reclaimed Territory is an initiative started by Claudius in Jamaica working in youth detention centers. This year it is extended to Scotland where Claudius will be visiting most of the prisons in Scotland during the month of September with a message of forgiveness, restoration and hope. You can help support this outreach into our prisons by supporting one of the concerts in church venues across the country. If you would like more information please get in touch.
